Course description

This course will concentrate on certain developments in metaphysics and philosophy of language in the period 1879–1913. We will read work by Gottlob Frege (1848–1925), Emily Elizabeth Constance Jones (1848–1922), Alexius Meinong (1853–1920), and Bertrand Russell (1872–1970).

On the metaphysics side, we'll look at whether, in addition to different kinds of beings (e.g. persons, numbers, concepts), there are different kinds of being (e.g. existence, subsistence, concept-existence, object-existence) and, if so, which kinds of being there are. In addition, we'll also look at whether any entities (e.g. the fictional character Supergirl) have no kind of being whatsoever.

On the philosophy of language side, we'll look at names (e.g. 'Kara') and definite descriptions (e.g. 'the bespectacled reporter from National City') as they occur in several linguistic constructions, including identity sentences (e.g. 'Kara = Supergirl') and belief ascriptions (e.g. 'Lena believes that Supergirl is from Krypton').

Course requirements

Quiz	5%
Short writing assignment	10%
First paper or problem set	25%
Second paper or problem set	25%
Final paper	35%

The quiz is worth 5% of the final grade; but, to pass the course, you will need to get a perfect score on it. You may take the quiz as many times as you like during the semester, provided that you get a perfect score at least once by the end of the semester.

The short writing assignment should be less than a page. Each of the next two assignments will be either a paper (about 2 or 3 pages) or a problem set; at least one of them will be a paper. The final paper should be about 3–5 pages. Due dates will be announced in class at least one week in advance.

Readings

Readings are available on Blackboard. I will often presuppose that students will have the relevant texts in front of them in class.

Academic misconduct

The university policy on academic misconduct is set out in Article II, Section 6 of the University Senate Rules and Regulations. Examples of academic misconduct include (but are not limited to) “giving or receiving of unauthorized aid on ... assignments,” “knowingly misrepresenting the source of any academic work,” and “plagiarizing another’s work.” Penalties for academic misconduct include receiving a failing grade for the course, being suspended from the university, and being expelled. For further details, see policy.ku.edu/governance/USRR#art2sect6.

Accessibility

I’m committed to making this class as accessible as possible. If you have any particular accommodation requests, please speak to me as soon as possible.

Title IX

According to Title IX, “No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.”¹

If you or someone you know has been sexually harassed or assaulted, you can find resources at the Office of Institutional Opportunity and Access (ioa.ku.edu) or by contacting the Title IX Coordinator (ioa@ku.edu).

Please note that, under FERPA (the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act), a university has a legal right to access its students’ medical records from campus health clinics.²

² In effect, FERPA limits the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA). See “Joint Guidance on the Application of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) and the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) to Student Health Records,” p. 6. Available at www.hhs.gov/sites/default/files/ocr/privacy/hipaa/understanding/coveridentities/hipaaferpajointguide.pdf.

Please note also that, under Title IX, faculty members have an obligation to report to IOA incidents of sexual harassment or assault that they know, or have reason to believe, have occurred.

Laptops

You are permitted to use laptops in class.

However, students report that they find laptop use in class distracting. This includes laptop use by their peers.³ (If you're browsing Facebook during class, you might find it interesting. So, apparently, might those around you.) More importantly, "the level of laptop use was negatively related to several measures of student learning, including ... overall course performance," which is to say that (generally speaking) the more students used laptops in class, the worse their final grades were.⁴

If you use a laptop in class, please try to sit somewhere where your screen is less likely to be visible to others.

Concealed carry

If you carry a concealed handgun, familiarize yourself both with the relevant state and federal laws and with KU's weapons policy. See concealedcarry.ku.edu/information.

Schedule

There is no class on Tuesday, 17 October 2017 (Fall Break) or Thursday, 23 November 2017 (Thanksgiving Break).

A detailed and updated schedule will be posted online. We might not cover all of the material listed in the tentative outline below; or we might cover more. How much (or how little) material we cover will depend on how the class goes.
